"Our customers continue to partner with us because we work to secure fresh produce, like grapefruit, when the market is in need," said Luke Sears, president and founder of LGS Specialty Sales. "If a retailer is having a hard time sourcing import grapefruit right now, look no further."

The company sources grapefruit from its farms in the fruitful Mediterranean-like climate of South Africa, where the weather is optimal for high-quality citrus. It recommends customers start their grapefruit import program alongside LGS with a healthy volume of the product available now through October.
