

South Africa

INSIDER GOLD

Cape Town's container port capacity boosted by fruit exporters

The Public Sector Partnership that helped boost fruit exports in 2025 has been renewed for 2026.

By Ciaran Ryan · 29 Dec 2025 ⌚ 15:00

The Western Cape has set an ambitious goal of trebling exports by 2035, contingent on reducing logistics costs and improving port efficiency. Image: Dwayne Senior/Bloomberg

Cape Town Container Terminal, which handles most of SA's fresh fruit exports, is making a determined bid to lift itself from the bottom of the World Bank's list of worst-performing ports.

Last week, it announced the renewal of a Public Sector Partnership (PSP) to maintain operational readiness at the port. This is a collaboration between the Western Cape government

TAGS: CAPE TOWN CONTAINER TERMINAL | CAPITAL SPENDING | COLD-CHAIN SUPPLY | DR IVAN MEYER |
EXPORTS | FRESH FRUIT | LOGISTICS | MECIA PETERSEN | PIET DE JAGER | RTG CRANES

