

Laeveld Citrus gives back to the local community on Mandela day

The 18th July 2018 would have been Nelson Mandela's 100th birthday.

Laeveld Citrus took the opportunity to give back to the community of Nkambako, a small village in the Letsitele area. The village has a little school, Nkambako Primary, and the education of the children has a very special place in their hearts.

A culture of learning as well as an eagerness to learn starts with the creation of a welcoming, warm and pleasant learning environment. It is for this reason that the employees of Laeveld Citrus elected to artistically paint the Grade R classroom in lovely bright and striking colours. Thank you to our artist, Nomalunga Zwane, who was responsible for the design and drawing of the artwork.

The day was celebrated with a short ceremony during which Irene Jordaan (Executive HR Manager) officially 'handed over' the freshly painted classroom to the principal of Nkambako Primary, Mr K.J. Kgatla.

A big thank you to Festus Coetzer (Jasi Manager) and his team, as well as the volunteering employees from Die Vlakte and the HR department who contributed to making this such a memorable and special day!!!
