Keeping all RBX Group Stakeholders Informed

Note from the Managing Director

The recent CGA Citrus Summit held in Port Elizabeth was a huge success. The event was fully subscribed with over 600 delegates and a good mixture of growers along with other industry stakeholders. The challenges that the world and in particular the South African citrus industry faces were discussed with numerous experts giving their perspectives. These perspectives along with a deeper understanding for all are critical in being able to manage these issues and move toward the expected doubling of citrus volumes out of South Africa in the next 10 years.

The CGAs Vision 260 is a coordinated drive to support this increase in volume through 8 specific projects that will each focus on specific aspects of the value chain. It is only with all of these projects contributing to improvements throughout the chain that the sustainability of the industry can be enhanced. It is pleasing to see that the mandate of the RBX Group fully supports the ideals of Vision 260 and the group will continue to evaluate all current offerings and actively look for new crop protection opportunities that will see this much fruit protected and successfully exported in 2033.

Strutting our Stuff

The RBX Group had an opportunity to be part of the CGA Pre-summit Tour that happened before the summit started. The 2-day event had attendees viewing integral parts of the value chain for citrus production. We had a demonstration day in the orchard with John Deere, where we showcased our Splatigators and the in-orchard applications. After that, we served some of our famous product-branded beers and shared dinner with the attendees. The following day the tour made its last stop at the RBX Group head office where we showcased what we are all about and included a tour of our labs to showcase some of our products.

River Bioscience also had the opportunity to sponsor the Sustainability session of the CGA Citrus Summit. It was an enlightening week, & we look forward to being part of Vision 260.
